

347—120.10(88,89B) Trade secret, medical emergency. In the event that a trade secret is involved in an employee exposure to a hazardous chemical that results in a medical emergency, the commissioner may issue a subpoena to obtain the identity of a chemical and the most recent update of the MSDS when the immediate release of such information is necessary for emergency medical treatment. The subpoena shall be issued to the chemical manufacturer, importer, or employer upon notice to the commissioner from the attending physician (or other authorized personnel) that a request for this information has been denied and a medical emergency does exist in accordance with 347—subrule 110.6(2).
